

The Seafood Training Academy is dedicated to providing high-quality cost-effective training to the seafood industry.

Working with trainers from individual Partners as well as external trainers who are associated with us, we strive to ensure that our training courses and programmes are able to make a real difference.

How do we do this?

Our suite of Recognised Training Programmes and our growing network of Recognised Trainers are just two ways in which we ensure that our Delivery Standards are met.

Recognised Training Programmes – these programmes have met our criteria for recognition which include the quality of the training materials, the formal qualifications and experience for trainers, and a commitment to continuing improvement and development.

The Delivery Standard – an eight point plan that sets out in detail what we expect of our trainers, centres and ourselves.

There is more information on how to become a recognised trainer on our website. Follow the link from the Training Programmes section to information on Recognised Programmes.

Key steps to becoming a Seafood Academy Recognised Trainer

- Significant experience of the seafood industry;
- A professional training certificate or equivalent qualification;
- An appropriate level food safety and/or H&S qualification;
- An Advanced Technical Certificate:
 - Specific to the topic to be delivered;
 - Developed by Seafish;
- A commitment to CPD;

Applications for recognition should be made to Academy@seafish.co.uk.

Seafish may be able to provide a financial contribution to the cost of trainer training. For information please contact a Seafood Academy Partner to seek their guidance and support.
